

Sophia Flores and Andrew Edwards are a saxophone and piano duo recognized for their compelling performances and commitment to meaningful repertoire. Together, they have presented their touring concert program, I Never Saw Another Butterfly, at venues throughout California, including The Pacific Club, Newport Public Library, the Holocaust Museum of Los Angeles, Boston Court Pasadena, the Noontime Concert Series, the Crocker Art Museum, and many more. The program highlights music by composers blacklisted during the Holocaust and serves as both a musical and historical tribute. As part of this concert, Flores and Edwards gave the world premiere of Timothy Maggs' arrangement of Farewell My Krakow.

The duo has also been invited to perform at the North American Saxophone Alliance Region 2 Conference and the Rush Hour Concert Series at the University of Southern California, as well as many other venues across California, sharing their artistry with diverse audiences in both academic and community settings.